At Home, Sunday Eve.

Dear Tom:

At last I have heard Farland play the Banjo. You certainly told the truth when you said I had never heard the Banjo played before. I am now fully satisfied that the Banjo is just as fine an instrument as the Violin or the Piano.

I never thought such tones could be gotten out of a Banjo – I would not have believed it could be done, – on the "say so" – but now I know it can be done (by A. A. Farland, at least) and that Stewart Banjo of his is surely a wonder.

I am going to ask Papa to write to S. S. Stewart about getting me one of those Special Banjos of his. I think you said it was called the "Thoroughbred" and Stewart's address was 223 Church St, Philadelphia! Is this right? If not please let me know, as I am going to get Papa to ~~write~~ get the Banjo for me as soon as possible.

Your loving cousin, Lizzie.
